MEMORANDUM

TO: THE HONORABLE MAYOR AND MEMBERS OF CITY COUNCIL

FROM: IGNACIO B. PESSOA
CITY ATTORNEY

KAREN S. SNOW
ASSISTANT CITY ATTORNEY

DATE: May 3, 2001

SUBJECT: ORDINANCE EXTENDING FRANCHISE OF VERIZON VIRGINIA, INC.
(FORMERLY BELL ATLANTIC-VIRGINIA, INCORPORATED)

Issue: Consideration of a proposed ordinance to extend the franchise of Verizon Virginia, Inc., for one year, until April 30, 2002.

Recommendation: That city council pass the proposed ordinance on first reading, and set the ordinance for public hearing, second reading and final passage on May 12, 2001.

Discussion: The city's franchise to Verizon Virginia, Inc. (the successor to Bell Atlantic-Virginia, Incorporated) authorizes the company "to use the [city's] streets, alleys, and other public places" and "to acquire, erect, maintain and use posts, poles, wires, manholes, ... and all other necessary apparatus in, under, over and along the streets, alleys and public places of the city for the purpose of providing a telephone and telegraph service and system" within the city. The franchise was granted in 1977 for a 20-year period, ending on April 30, 1997. This is the fourth extension of the franchise agreement. As explained below, this extension is at the request of both city staff and Verizon.

In last year's docket memorandum, a copy of which is attached, we set out the history of the franchise and the prior extensions.

In that memorandum, we advised you that the federal courts of appeal had issued conflicting decisions regarding the application of local governments' authority to impose user fees and otherwise regulate their rights-of-way under the Federal Telecommunications Act.

Unfortunately, one year later, the case pending in the Fourth Circuit, which includes Virginia, has not been resolved. Resolution of these legal issues will affect the terms of a new, long term franchise.

Verison has requested that franchise negotiations with the city resume after June 1, 2001, because of the internal changes within the company which were a result of the August 2000, merger between Bell Atlantic and GTE. Moreover, Verison's general counsel has advised city staff that he and his staff have been fully occupied by ongoing franchise negotiations with other local governments.

It is our intention to begin meeting with Verison in June and to have a new franchise ready for presentation to council by February of next year. Therefore, in order to keep the current franchise in effect during this period of negotiation, the proposed ordinance extends the term of the franchise until April 30, 2002.

We will be pleased to answer any questions about this matter.

DATE: APRIL 6, 2000

SUBJECT: ORDINANCE EXTENDING TERM OF BELL ATLANTIC FRANCHISE

Issue: Consideration of the attached proposed ordinance which extends the Bell Atlantic-Virginia, Incorporated ("Bell Atlantic"), franchise by one year, from April 30, 2000, to April 30, 2001.

Recommendation: That city council pass the proposed ordinance on first reading, and set the ordinance for public hearing, second reading and final passage on April 15, 2000.

Discussion: The city's franchise to Bell Atlantic authorizes it "to use the [city's] streets, alleys, and other public places" and "to acquire, erect, maintain and use posts, poles, wires, manholes, ... and all other necessary apparatus in, under, over and along the streets, alleys and public places of the city for the purpose of providing a telephone and telegraph service and system" within the city. The franchise was granted in 1977 for a 20-year period, ending on April 30, 1997. This is the third extension of the franchise agreement. As explained below, this extension is at the request of both city staff and Bell Atlantic because cases are pending before federal courts of appeal which when decided will establish the authority of local governments' to manage their public rights-of-way.

In 1997, city council extended the franchise for two years, until April 30, 1999. This was done because of legislation enacted by the General Assembly in 1997 that effectively placed a one-year moratorium on the authority of cities to impose any type of franchise fees on telephone companies, or to require the provision of any type of in-kind services or physical assets from such companies, in return for a franchise permitting the companies to use and occupy public rights-of-way. Council decided in 1997 that negotiations over a new franchise with Bell Atlantic should not begin until the General Assembly had enacted new legislation that lifted this moratorium and defined the authority of Virginia cities to impose fees and other requirements on phone companies in return for permission to use and occupy public rights-of-way.

Such legislation was enacted by the General Assembly during its 1998 session and became effective on July 1, 1998. The legislation removed the moratorium that had been established a year earlier; it also (i) authorized cities to impose a "public rights-of-way fee" on each residential and business telephone line within their boundaries, (ii) assigned to the state department of transportation the responsibility annually to set the amount of the fee, and (iii) prohibited cities that elect to impose the fee from placing other requirements on telephone companies in return for the right to use and occupy rights-of-way. The city elected to impose this "public rights-of-way" fee, and an ordinance accomplishing this was enacted in June 1998.

In January 1999, Bell Atlantic requested that the city extend the franchise until April 30, 2000, because the parties had not had the opportunity to meet and negotiate a new franchise agreement. An ordinance accomplishing this was enacted on April 17, 1999.

With the lifting of the moratorium and the definition of cities' authority to impose what amounts to a franchise fee on telephone companies, we had expected to be able to negotiate a new franchise with Bell Atlantic during the latter part of 1998 and to present it to council for approval prior to the expiration of the current franchise on April 30, 1999. However, the application of the rights-of-way fee and local governments' authority to regulate their rights-of-way have been litigated by local governments in Maryland and Texas. Those courts have issued conflicting decisions. At least two of these cases have been appealed and argued before federal circuit courts. The federal courts are to decide these cases in the next four months. Therefore, Bell Atlantic and city staff have agreed to defer negotiations of a new franchise until these cases have been decided.

It is our current intention to begin meeting with Bell Atlantic after the cases on appeal have been decided and to have a new franchise ready for presentation to council in March of next year.

In order to keep the current franchise in effect during this period of waiting for the issuance of the courts' decisions and thereafter to start negotiations, the attached ordinance extends the term of franchise until April 30, 2001.

If you have any questions, please call us.
